

ABCD & Boehringer Ingelheim invite applications for the 2025 Young Scientist Award

The European Advisory Board on Cat Diseases (ABCD) invites applications for the ABCD & Boehringer Ingelheim Young Scientist Award 2025, which rewards innovative and outstanding work by promising young professionals in the field of feline infectious diseases and/or applied immunology.

The award consists of a certificate and complimentary attendance to a scientific congress of choice, including travel expenses and accommodation. The choice of the event shall be made in consultation with Boehringer Ingelheim. All reservations will be made by Boehringer Ingelheim in agreement with the laureate.

The award will be presented by the ABCD during the World Feline Congress to be held from 27 to 29 June 2025 in Edinburgh, UK. The winner is expected to give a short presentation or present a poster of his/her findings at this event. The registration, travel expenses and accommodation for the recipient to attend this congress will also be covered by Boehringer Ingelheim.

Candidates should have made an original contribution to the field of feline infectious diseases and/or immunology, which has been published or accepted for publication in a referenced journal or accepted by another assessing body in 2022 or later.

Candidates should be based in Europe, have completed a veterinary or biomedical curriculum, and be under 35 years of age at the time of application.

Applications should be made in English in an electronic format and include a short abstract (max. 500 words) of the work the applicant wishes to submit, as well as a short curriculum vitae and two personal references. Any relevant publications and/or dissertation on the topic should be included. The deadline for submission is 15 March 2025.

The Young Scientist Award was created in 2008 jointly by Boehringer Ingelheim (then Merial) and the ABCD.

The 2024 recipient of the Award was Katarina Zwicklbauer.

Application forms and detailed rules can be downloaded from the ABCD web site \(www.abcdcatsvets.org\)
For further information, please contact Karin de Lange, ABCD secretary, karin@abcdcatsvets.org

Notes to Editors:

- The European Advisory Board on Cat Diseases (ABCD) is an independent, self-governing and multi-sponsored panel of European experts in immunology, vaccinology and/or feline medicine. The ABCD was set up to compile guidelines for the prevention and management of major feline infectious diseases in Europe, based on current scientific knowledge. For more information, please visit www.abcdcatsvets.org
- Boehringer Ingelheim, one of the largest animal health business in the world, is the founding sponsor of the ABCD. For more information about Boehringer Ingelheim Animal Health, please visit <https://www.boehringer-ingelheim.com/animal-health/animal-health>.